Laika series is:

crossmedia

We have interactive sections like:

- “I want to be an Astronaut”
- A voting system for choose the next episode.

How it works?

During each episode's closing credits, Laika will display her star cards to decide which coordinates they'll be following next. Laika or one of her fellow crew members will propose three options and the public will choose the crew's next destination. This way, we encourage spectator participation and they will feel like Alex or Carol, one of the goals in the series' evolution.

Voting will be done online, through the Laika website (currently available at www.laika.tv), and will be sent as an independent module to each Channel so it can implement it personally on its own corporative website. This way we achieve the first cross-platform exchange.

Another form of interactivity will be the selection of a "guest astronaut" for each episode, where a picture of one of the viewers will be automatically introduced in a designated slot during the episode.

and also is:

Transmedia

· The series offers extra contents trought diferent platforms.

· Encourages interaction between contents and spectator.

How it works?

Laika Space Adventures emerges as one of the first stereoscopic 3D contents including interactive applications and transmedia to be produced in Spain.

We plan to develop a series of contents revolving around the show that can only be accessed using other platforms different from television.

Lets take a look at the website!

1.- Makes it possible to create a user base because people have to register to be able to access the additional content. It is a valuable data collection tool for developing marketing campaigns as well as evaluating and improving the series.

About Laika & Friends

Laika and her crew, lost in space, struggle daily to find a way that will take them back home to Earth.

Laika is in contact with Alex and Carol, two kids from Earth who try to combine their complicated and busy teenage life with helping Laika and her fellow crew members, using a computer that links them up via satellite.

But life in space and on Earth isn't so easy; in space they have to contend with the space pirate Captain Manrer and his henchmen and on Earth, with Mark the blockhead, Carol's big brother.

...on earth...

On Earth, between connections with Laika's ship, Alex, a teenager into sci-fi, tries to spend the day chilling in his room, enjoying his video game consoles and his space combat movies.

His neighbor Carol, a highly gifted fashion-victim, knows Alex's secret, because without her knowledge of "nanotechnology applied to intergalactic telecommunications", they would never have been able to contact Laika's ship.

But Alex gets extremely annoyed by Carol's presence because she rattles on nonstop about boys, clothes and her favorite band. They both have to deal with exams, their parents' grounding them and Mark's irritating shenanigans, while trying to help Laika and her crew without anyone finding out.

...while in space...

Our five astronauts live aboard the spaceship Spetnik: Captain Laika, a Russian dog. Desmond the French cat and a remarkable inventor, or at least that's what he thinks. Goliath, a monkey with a great sense of rhythm convinced he's a big rock star on Earth. Chop, the bad-tempered Chinese mouse, mechanics expert, and his brother Suey, a very laid-back mouse with a big appetite in charge of cooking for all of them.

Laika and the rest of the crew try to return to Earth the quickest way possible, but they can't help lending a hand wherever they're needed, even though they have to watch out for Captain Manrer, a bumbling space pirate, and his bothersome nephew who is spending his vacation on his uncle's ship.

Meet the characters

A 15-year-old boy living in a middle-class family and who has always wanted to be an astronaut. When he turned 10, his father gave him a high-powered telescope and now he knows the entire solar system by heart.

He's ''hooked'' on his computer, moviles, and other gadgets with a screen used to, among other things, play all sorts of different games. He also loves sci-fi movies.

With the help of his highly gifted neighbor, he accessed and modified a computer program so he could contact beings from other planets. One evening, he accidentally linked up with the computer on Laika's ship and, since then, they are constantly connected.

He doesn't like doing homework and gets easily distracted with his gizmos; this gets him endlessly grounded by his parents. He's extremely messy and jealously guards his privacy and his things.

She's the 14-year-old neighbor from across the street. A girl with an exceptionally gifted mind and who's very attractive to boot. She knows Alex's big secret and, because she's so brainy, she helps him out with his telescope and other technical or computer-related problems.

Besides her passion for computers, her other topics of conversation are boys and her favorite band, "The Rockets". She's also crazy about fashion and accessories.

She's constantly touching Alex's things, something that bothers him tremendously. She never gets angry and doesn't pick up on hints. She's very clumsy physically and is a scatterbrain.

He’s Carol’s 16-year old big brother.

He’s in Alex’s class because he’s a repeater. He’s not interested in anything not related to sports, but he’s not sure about which one.

He’s constantly trying out for new sports, but never sticks with it more than two weeks.

In his free time he likes to pull pranks that, occasionally, consist of pestering his sister and Alex.

Mark the bad guy

She's the famous Russian Dog, Captain of the Spetnik.

Laika is a little bipolar, sometimes she's nice and sweet, and sometimes she's bossy and out-of-control.

She's methodical and very orderly. And she's very "domineering".

Her big obsession is to return to Earth.

Her bedside book is "From the Earth to the Moon" by Jules Verne.

Laika keeps a diary where she likes to write frequently, because it's good therapy for her to let off steam.

He’s the ship’s French Cat.

Desmond considers himself to be a great inventor and the truth is he actually does have some good ideas, but he’s a bit sloppy when it comes to putting them into practice.

As a result, his inventions sometimes don’t turn out as well as he expects.

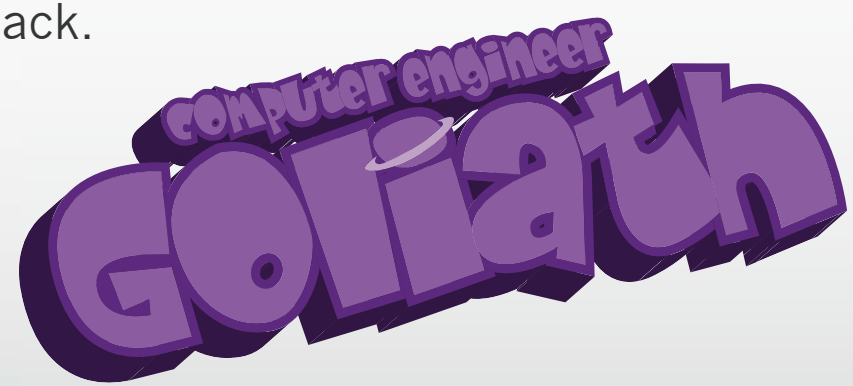
inventor Desmond

He's from the United States and is a monkey.

Goliath is in charge of the Ship's electronic devices. He is annoyingly hyperactive, and dreams of becoming a great musician.

He has a cocky, utterly rocker-style attitude, and considers himself to be the big star of the show.

All the cockiness he flaunts vanishes when they're in danger; he's a coward, to the point of breaking down with a narcolepsy attack.



One of the Chinese mice twins, missing a piece of his ear.

He's bad-tempered and detests the situation he's in, but he accepts it with resignation. He can't stand Goliath.

He's very meticulous and knows a lot about mechanics, but gets the job done after a ton of complaints and reproaches. His brother Suey's uselessness gets on his nerves.

Chop is convinced he works more than anyone else on the entire ship, and that if it wasn't for him, they wouldn't even be alive still. It bothers him not to feel acknowledged, resulting in his bad temper.

chef Suey

Chop's twin brother.

He's the chubbier of the two.

His intelligence is very limited, just enough to get through the day. He's happy and carefree.

When it comes to food, he's an expert chef and an uncontrollable glutton.

No one knows why, but Manrer hates Laika and her crew: Anything furry, four legged and kind is in danger near him.

He suffers a curious illnes he named as "Manrer's Original Random and Selective Amnesia" (or MORSA), so he remembers what he likes and pretends nothing happened when he does something wrong, what happens suprisingly often.

Manrer has a full crew of Space Pirates. They don't take him very seriously because of his aspect, but be careful, besides his looks he is incredibly evil.

ASTEROID EXPRESS

Goliath is on guard duty while the rest of the crew sleeps. Seeing that it's a very boring evening, he's watching a TV show where they're raffling off a trip on the luxurious galactic-train, the Asteroid-Express, but first he has to guess the answer to a question. Goliath, with Alex's help, hastily calls and wins.

Meanwhile on Earth...
Immediately after talking to Goliath, Alex receives a message in the computer's chat room from someone who wants to meet him.

He gets panicky at first because it's a girl, and even though he's a little reluctant, he finally winds up writing back and forth with her all night... like a little lovebird.

Back in space...
When Goliath receives the tickets, he realizes there are only four. They decide to hide Chop in one of their suitcases so all five of them can go on the trip.

On Earth...
It's daytime now and Carol comes in through his window to tell him that she likes a friend from the neighborhood, but she can't tell him who it is. At this point Alex starts to suspect that maybe Carol is the mysterious chat room girl. But that's impossible; they're neighbors and have known each other for ages.

In space...
Once they're aboard the train, our heroes live it up like kings and queens among the universe's crème de la crème. At one point of their journey, the Asteroid-Express goes through a black hole and the train is plunged into darkness for a few moments. Suddenly many screams are heard, and when they come out of the black hole, all of the passengers' jewels have been stolen.

On Earth...
Meanwhile, to figure out if Carol is the chat room girl or not, Alex asks her what color jacket she's wearing, and she answers that it's red.

Moments later, Carol walks through the room again, wearing a red jacket. Alex suddenly gets very edgy and starts trying to draw attention to himself.

In space...
The train's detective turns all his suspicions to Laika and her crew, because they were the last to board.

Laika and her companions undertake their own parallel investigation to discover who's stolen the jewels and clear their name.

Chop, who is still hidden away, overhears a conversation in the luggage compartment. This will solve the case because, thanks to Chop, they discover that the jewel thief is Captain Manrer VIII and his nephew who were hiding away on the train.

Manrer and his nephew escape, leaving the jewels behind.

The detective thanks our heroes, but kicks them off the train for having brought Chop aboard without a ticket.

On Earth...
The next day, Alex is wearing a tux and there are candles all over the room. Carol climbs up and in through the window, taking him by surprise. But Alex regains his composure and tries to kiss her movie hero-style, but Carol rears up like a cobra and leaps up onto a closet in a single bound.

Alex doesn't get it; he knows he's the neighborhood boy she likes. Carol starts to laugh and tells him that no, it's not her neighbor from across the street. Alex can't understand it; they had been chatting and everything. But Carol says it wasn't her. And at that very moment, and in front of Carol, he receives another little message from the girl. That's weird. If it's not Carol, who else could it be?

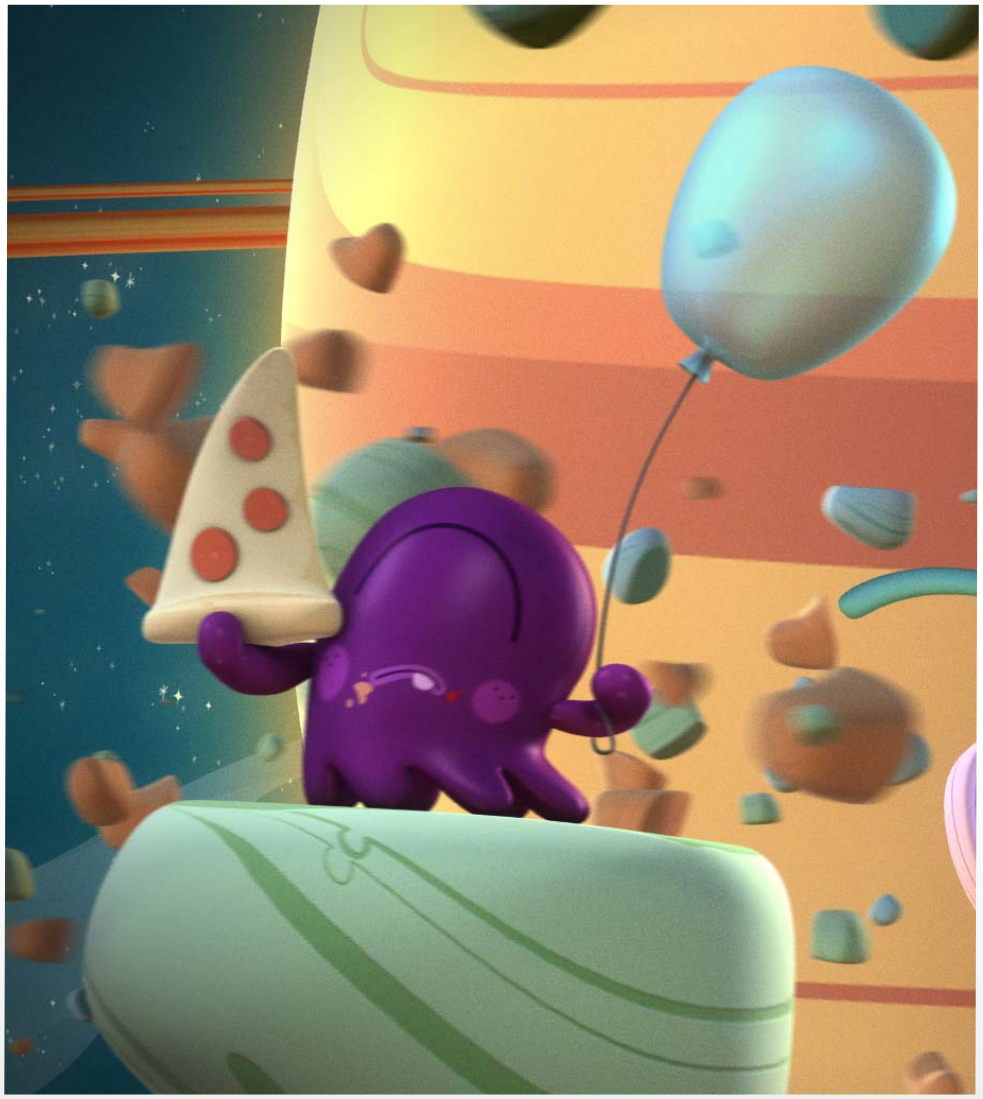
In space...
Aboard the Pirate ship, Manrer VIII and his nephew are ranting and raving about Laika because, thanks to her, they couldn't get away with the jewels.

In the foreground we see a happy little Polecat Turuncillo dressed up as a woman, with a red jacket and lipstick, writing in the ship's computer's chat room. "I think it's time for us to see each other in person, Alex... what planet do you live on?"



PLANET BURGER

Laika and her companions continue their journey towards Earth. Desmond convinces the others to take a shortcut. After flying around and around, passing by strange planets, what everyone suspects is finally confirmed: they're lost.

Desmond contacts Alex so he can search for a way out. Alex processes a universal GPS with a lightweight program Carol's invented, but it looks like it's not going to be easy for the computer and he asks them to be patient.

While searching for the way back, they stumble on a Macro-restaurant, PLANET BURGER, and decide to stop and ask directions to get back.

Meanwhile on Earth...
Alex is bored with surfing the Internet while he's waiting for the computer to finish processing. To his surprise: a Space-Wars soldier's original, limited edition armor. But it costs too much and his parents definitely won't want to give him any more money because he always throws it away on stupid trash. "It's time to build a future for yourself"... Alex starts to search for a job on the Internet to be able to afford the blessed little suit.

Back in space...
The crew enters PLANET-BURGER. The owner comes out to greet them cheerfully and invites them to taste his marvelous hamburgers. Laika thanks him but all they need are directions to get back on the main route. The owner breaks down and cries, he's never had one single customer. Captain Manrer VIII sold him the place and lied to him, saying he was going to make tons of money.

Feeling sorry for him, Suey accepts a hamburger so he doesn't feel hurt, but when he takes a bite he has to spit it out it's so disgusting.

Our heroes are heartbroken, and they decide to help out. Chop fixes his lighting, setting up spotlights that can be seen from anywhere in the galaxy. Suey invents a scrumptious hamburger recipe. Goliath puts together a flashy Las Vegas-style show. Laika works the cash desk and Desmond, sporting some ultra-speedy skates he invented himself, works as a somewhat out-of-control waiter.

On Earth...
Alex finds a job as a “bicycle paperboy” and without further delay he takes off to make the money he so desperately needs. But he soon returns, dead tired, sweaty, his shinbones trembling like two bowls of Jell-O.

All this physical work isn’t for him. The computer’s still processing. He’s going to have to look for a job that’s more “up his alley” in the meantime.

In space...
The results of the entire crew’s hard work aren’t long in coming and customers begin to arrive in droves. The business is a huge success, and Laika and her fellow crew members work day, afternoon and night.

On Earth...
Alex gives working as a drawing “teach” for kids a try, something easy and not stressful. In the next scene we see his whole room full of kids jumping on his bed, pulling his hair, scrawling on the walls... etc. Once he’s alone, he decides that this job isn’t for him either. He’ll have to keep looking.

In space...
Success goes to the owner of PLANET-BURGER’s head and he becomes a tyrant, taking advantage of Laika and her companions to the extreme.

The only one that’s happy about the situation is Goliath, because he’s become the restaurant’s big star.

One night they decide to escape, dragging Goliath along with them because they can't take the owner's tyranny any more. When the owner sees them escaping, he runs after them wielding a shotgun and shouting "DESERTERS". They quickly contact Alex, who has just finished the universal GPS processing at this very moment.

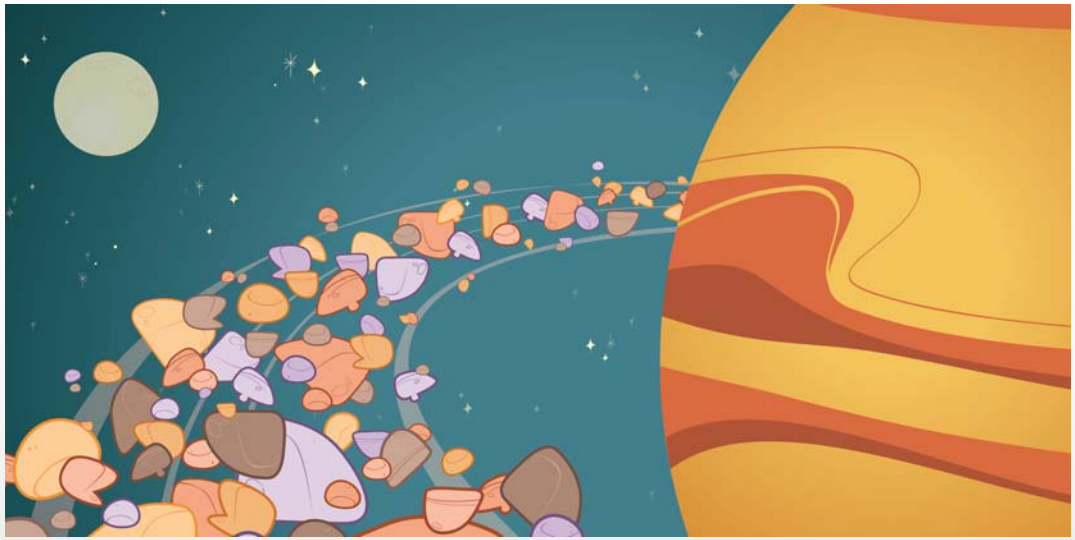
He sends them the information they need with the right way to get back to the main route, and they disappear before the astonished gaze of the owner who breaks down and cries, until he sees the enormous amount of money he's made.

Seconds later, he spends it all on an absurd investment a travelling salesman offers him, and winds up ruined again.

Days later, Laika and her companions are talking leisurely. Alex proudly shows them the Space-Wars armor he's bought. When Chop asks him how he's paid for something so expensive, Alex says working in security for some high-ranking politicians. Just then Carol appears dressed as a girl scout/cookie salesgirl, and presses Alex to put on a skirt and grab some cookies since it's his last day on the job.

Alex blushes and the entire Spetnik crew bursts out laughing... well, all except one of them, Suey, who's kind of busy. He's set up a Drive-in Burger joint in the Spetnik, serving his now famous space burger. The line of ships waiting their turn disappears back into space.

Laika squared



Alex has an exam coming up and is scared out of his mind. He doesn't know the material and it's just 2 days away. But he suddenly comes up with an idea: why not make a robot identical to himself that can go to school and take the exam for him?

Alex calls his neighbor and explains his plan. She offers to help him study but never to cheat on an exam.

In space...

Alex calls the ship. The only one who pays any attention to him is Desmond. The other are playing hide and seek. Alex asks him for a favor. He knows he's a great inventor and asks him to design a robot specialized in taking exams. Desmond asks him if it's to cheat on a test and Alex says no.

Desmond is satisfied with his obviously false answer, and in two seconds, he draws up some drafts and sends them to him.

Laika, looking for a good place to hide, discovers Desmond's corner of defective inventions. She's sure that no one will dare come near there. She accidentally leans on a defective gamma ray cannon.

A discharge of rays hits Laika, hurling her back behind some boxes. The ray has created a second Laika, Laika2, who takes off running about the ship without anyone realizing it, not even Laika herself.

Meanwhile on Earth...
Alex starts building his robot. He doesn't have much time so he has to rush.

In space...
Life onboard the ship goes on as normal, except for Laika2 (Cheerful, Happy, Carefree and Mad as a hatter), who appears precisely when Laika isn't around, giving the crew totally absurd orders.

Since no one notices any physical difference, they all obey her orders, despite how silly they may be.

On Earth...
Alex finally has his robot and he dresses him up to look like him. Its' a pretty slapdash invention, but the truth is that it looks a lot like him. When he gives it its first order to walk, it shuts down after taking its first step. Alex realizes it will work if it's plugged in to something.

In space...
When Laika reaches the bridge, she sees everyone blowing bubbles, sack racing, and painting the walls different colors. Bewildered, Laika asks them what they're doing and they all say following her orders.

After an enormous scolding, she orders them to clean the walls, prepare some food and control the ship's course. Surprised, the crew is bewildered, but obeys.

On Earth...
Alex goes up to his room with the battery from his father's car. He's convinced that with all the engine trouble it's having, he won't even notice it. He connects the robot to the battery and it works perfectly. Alex is ecstatic.

In space...
Laika2 appears on the bridge again, giving them the same orders as before. Desmond and the others, more and more confused, obey and go back to their sack racing, painting the walls... etc. ...

As soon as Laika2 leaves, Laika reappears, exploding when she sees they're scrawling on the walls and doing everything else again, and she orders them to clean up the walls once more. The contradicting orders are driving the crew insane and they wind up locking her up in the bathroom.

On Earth...
Today is exam day, and Alex scans his math book with a scanner built into the robot 's head. After a barrage of questions, it's confirmed that the robot is a perfect exam-taking machine. Alex dresses him in his clothes. He's all set.

In space...
While the crew is locking Laika into the bathroom, Laika2 suddenly appears jumping rope. The crew releases Laika.

Laika and Laika2 both try to prove that each is the original. Asking them questions, Goliath and the others unintentionally manage to drive Laika crazy and she explodes, proving who the original one is.

On Earth...
Alex sends the robot outside, and keeps his eyes on him from the window, while he goes over the list in his head: book scanned, battery charged, everything oiled up.

He suddenly sees something on the floor. Oh man, he forgot to put on his plastic raincoat, but he doesn't think it will be necessary.

Suddenly, it starts raining cats and dogs. From his window Alex sees the robot, after a series of jerks and short-circuits, fall lifelessly to the ground and some scrap dealers take it away.

Now someone knocks on the bedroom door. Disheartened, Alex opens the door and a robot that's identical to Carol walks in, wearing a raincoat, and it starts to laugh at him.

Meanwhile in space...
Desmond appears with the gamma ray cannon. According to him, what started this whole mess will put an end to it, and he fires a ray at Laika2.

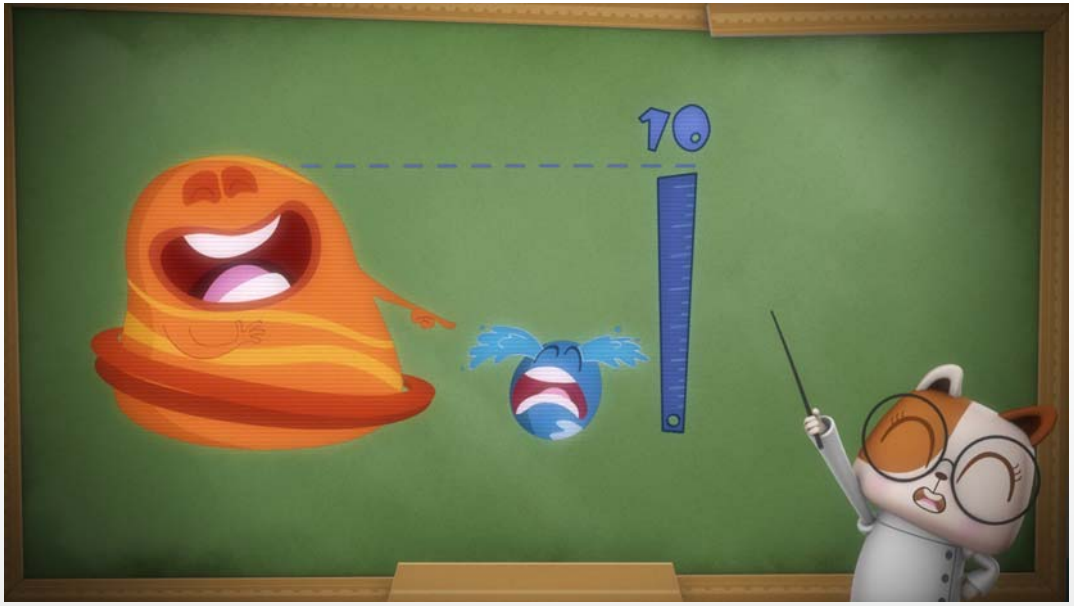
Moments later we see the Spetnik making bizarre movements and jolting around from one side to another.

Inside we see the ship is full to bursting with hundreds and hundreds of Laikas giving orders nonstop. Goliath, Desmond, Chop and Suey have locked themselves into the bathroom.

Bad Luck



Alex has a school trip to see Central Lake. Hedoesn't feel like going at all; as everyone knows, in the middle of the countryside there's no Internet and he can't connect his game consoles. He wants to get out of it and stay home with his cherished electronic devices, but he doesn't know how. Laika tells him he should go on out and enjoy the countryside.

In space...

In the middle of the conversation a tiny black Alien cuts in front of the ship. Goliath slams on the brakes and the connection with Alex gets cut off. Everyone wonders what the problem is. Goliath explains that if a black alien cuts in front of you, it means 5 days of bad luck. Everyone laughs at him and they continue their journey.

Moments later Desmond gets his hand caught in the door. Goliath chalks it up to bad luck, but the rest of them see it as an unimportant, isolated event. But it is very important to Desmond, because his hand is totally bent out of shape.

On Earth...
Alex is still trying to think of a way to avoid the trip, but with no luck, so he decides to call his brainy neighbor to see if she can come up with something. But Carol is at home sick with horrible flu. A light bulb goes off for Alex. If he catches the Flu he won't have to go and he can stay at home playing with his Play Station.

After much insistence, Carol, sick and wrapped from head to toes in a blanket, shows up at Alex's house. He asks her to cough in his face and to leave her viruses floating in the air so he can catch a heavy one too.

In space...
The Spetnik continues its voyage. Goliath keeps insisting on the evil eye. Laika says no, those are only old wives' tales. Suddenly a sheet of space garbage flies straight towards the flight deck, barely giving them time to maneuver. When they are just about to collide, Laika swerves sharply, skillfully avoiding it.

Laika proudly tells Goliath that if they had bad luck, they would have crashed. She hasn't even finished her sentence when we hear a scream coming from the kitchen.

Suey is totally scorched because with the sharp swerve, the hot chocolate he was preparing as an afternoon snack has spilled all over him.

Bowing to the evidence, they decide to put an end to their bad luck and search for the black alien, so he can cross their path again and cancel out the curse.

On Earth...
When night falls, Alex goes to sleep uncovered with two ice cubes under each armpit and the window open. He goes over his steps and thinks he's done everything just right to catch the flu.

The next day he wakes up in perfect shape. He takes his temperature and it says 19º.

He doesn't get it, he should be burning up with fever. Much to his regret, he picks up his backpack. While Laika cheers him up, he tells him to make the most of the things that they aren't going to be seeing for a long time. Suddenly, Laika receives a strong electric shock. Alex understands that he should go out and enjoy nature, and in the end he's happy about this new experience.

In space...
Still annoyed about the electric shock she's just received, Laika sees the black Alien in front of the ship. Laika tries to cross over in front of it, but they bump into an asteroid and Chop falls face first onto the floor. Frightened, the alien takes off.

As he escapes, Laika constantly tries to cross in front of the alien, causing all sorts of blows, falls, bruises... etc.

Finally, and after almost destroying the entire ship, they manage to cross in front of the black Alien, and all of their misfortunes are over.

After being jinxed, the crew enjoys a peaceful day. When they contact Alex, they see he's in bed with a hot water bottle on his head. He explains that when they went out to the country, they got trapped in a downpour and he caught the cold of the year.

Goliath says that now he can make the most of it and play with his gizmos as much as he wants. But Alex replies that he can't, they make his head hurt and the only think he feels like doing is sleeping.

Suey appears with a giant mirror that he can barely carry. He thinks it's pretty and would look good on the bridge. He suddenly trips and the mirror breaks into a thousand pieces. Horrified, Goliath covers his face with his hands.

Laika, seeing Goliath's expression, asks him if this is also going to mean a week of bad luck. He says no. They all relax until he explains that it's not a week, it's 7 years. They all scream in horror.

OUTLAWS

Laika is surprised. Alex and Carol have found a briefcase on a park bench and taken it home. Goliath recommends they take it back and leave it where they found it. Alex and Carol say that's what they'll do and then suspiciously end the connection.

The crew is tired and bored after so many days in space.

Chop sees as planet with a small, pleasant little town and decides to land. Meanwhile they comment that they're sure Alex and Carol will return the briefcase.

On Earth...
Alex and Carol are totally petrified before the open briefcase. On the floor, in front of them, there is an ungodly pile of money Alex starts to fantasize about what he can do with so much money.

Carol does too, until she finally reacts and says they should call the police. Alex is against it because it might be Mafia money and they could be digging their own grave. These words make both of them panic and they draw the shades and turn off the lights.

In space...
The Spetnik lands on the idyllic planet of Rosewood. There are a lot of people expecting them. Goliath is convinced that they're fans who are following the five crew member's adventures. When they set foot on the ground, they are immediately arrested by the Sheriff and his deputy. They entire town is extremely angry with Laika and her companions. They accuse them of having robbed the town's candy bank. Laika and the others are bewildered.

On Earth...
Alex and his neighbor are sitting with the shades drawn and the lights off, hypnotized as they stare at the pile of money. They don't even want to go outside they're so scared. At one point Carol really has to pee. To go out safely and unnoticed, she disguises herself with a trench coat and a hat.

Meanwhile back in space...
Our friends are locked up by the Sheriff in the maximum security jail, where the most dangerous prisoners in the quadrant are found. Laika and the others meet Melvin, a prisoner who lends them a hand so they can survive on the inside. Melvin has been locked up for over 300 years for stealing a lollypop that was on the ground.

Laika starts to panic. If Melvin was sentenced to 300 years for a “previously sucked on” lollipop, although unfairly accused, how many would they get for robbing the candy bank? At this point one of the prisoners congratulates them on the job and shows them a picture from the newspaper where you can clearly see Manrer VIII and four henchmen, wearing masks of Laika and the rest of the crew, robbing the bank. They don’t have time to think twice. They need to escape or they’ll spend the rest of their days there.

On Earth...
Totally paranoid, Alex and Carol eat and sleep beside the money, always keeping one eye open. The hours of lost sleep and the lack of light multiplies their mutual distrust.

The situation reaches the point that it’s so unhealthy, they decide to put an end to it. They put the money back into the case and go down to the park at night to leave it on the same park bench where they’d found it.

Alex and Carol can finally sleep in peace.

In space...
It is finally D-Day and H-Hour. With Melvin’s help, and after a somewhat chaotic getaway, they manage to escape from prison. Once they’re out, Melvin decides to stay. He wants to rectify his mistake, and he’s going to spend his time collecting all the previously sucked on lollypops he sees on the ground and give them to kids. After an emotional but short goodbye, our heroes reach the municipal tow truck, where the Spetnik is being held.

Desmond takes out an invention of his, a silencer, to break open the gate. Of course Desmond's silencer wakes up the entire town and they just barely manage to get away.

On Earth...
The next day, Carol arrives in the morning, happy and radiant after having gotten rid of the wretched briefcase. To wake up Alex, she turns the radio all the way up. Alex doesn't want to get up, he's exhausted. The radio announcer says that they already have a winner in the contest called "The Briefcase" a contest that consists of finding a briefcase randomly left on a park bench with a million Euros in it. Whoever finds this briefcase gets to keep the money, tax-free even. Well they have a winner: Ronald the neighborhood street cleaner. Alex springs out of bed, staring at the radio. Carol stands frozen in front of it. Carol starts to cry and Alex bangs his head against the wall.

In space...
Chop runs onto the bridge where everyone's talking about to Alex and Carol. Chop is carrying today's paper where it says that they've caught Manrer VIII and his entire crew, accused of robbing the candy bank. They were found on a nearby moon, with upset stomachs from so much candy.

Desmond jumps on the others, dresses as a rustler. He thinks being an outlaw was fun.

HELP DESMOND

In which one of these three tubes can Desmond find his way back to the spaceship? A, B or C, can you help him?

What we should know about Saturn...

Saturn has an equatorial diameter of 119,300 kilometres; this makes it the second largest Planet from the Solar System! Saturn's days are very short, they last 10 hours and 39 minutes but take 29.5 terrestrial years to go around the Sun and due to its rapid rotation it is flattened at the poles.

Its atmosphere is composed mostly of Hydrogen with a smaller amount of Helium and Methane.

Saturn is the only Planet of the Solar System that is less dense than water (About 30%) if we could create an ocean large enough Saturn would float on it Saturn's winds are known for blowing very hard, about 500 metres per second. But its speed lowers when we go further away.
